Verse 2

Lord Your will not mine have Your way in my life
May all my thoughts and deeds be pleasing in Your sight
And in your perfect time as I humble myself
I know You'll lift me up and gone will be the night

"You Are Able, Lord"

1. I've turned and walked away, so many times each day
2. Lord, Your will not mine, have Your way in my life

1. I've left you standing there with arms open wide
2. May all my thoughts and deeds be pleasing in Your sight

1. I wanted my own way but it led me astray
2. And in Your perfect time, as I humble myself

1. And now the storm has come and there's no place to hide
2. I know You'll lift me up, and gone will be the night

(Bridge)

But through it all, I hear You call my name
And I turn to see You reach out for my hand
Why You love me so, I cannot explain
And even though I've fallen once again . . .

(Chorus)

You are able, Lord to turn my life around
And make it something beautiful for You
Then I will be able, Lord through this new life I've found
To bring You all the glory that is due

“You Are Able, Lord”

(Verse 1)

I've turned and walked away so many times each day
I've left you standing there with arms open wide.
I wanted my own way but it led me astray
And now the storm has come and there's no place to hide.

(Bridge)

But through it all, I hear You call my name
And I turn to see You reach out for my hand
Why You love me so, I cannot explain.
And even though I've fallen once again . . .

(Chorus)

You are able, Lord to turn my life around
And make it something beautiful for You
Then I will be able, Lord through this new life I've found
To bring You all the glory that is due

(Verse 2)

Lord, You will not mine, have Your way in my life
May all my thoughts and deeds be pleasing in Your sight
And in Your perfect time, as I humble myself
I know You'll lift me up and gone will be the night
